inside out - 3.5.06

Written by bubba

Sorry, I seem to be venting a lot lately. I am around a good group of people in here but some days I just can't stand them and vice versa. I try to laugh as much as possible but lately I go into a funk and get down…that happens when I pick up the phone. Kelli has been great. The two of you and of course my family have been great. Thank you.

This month is almost over and it is hard. There is another guy in here that I met who is in for similar charges. He violated his probation for being with his uncle and nephew. He says it is different at first…the polygraph, checking in and all the restrictions that come along with it. What have I done? All this madness that I must go through! He said it can be done. He has kids too and it has been tough for him. But maybe he can offer some insight to what I will have to endure. I get scared thinking about it. Who wouldn't? My mind goes in so many different directions on a daily basis. Thanks for all your support and love. Tell Rhonda thank you for letting you give me support. I just don't know where I would be without you.

On a final note to everybody – I am a human being who made a bad decision in my life. Do I feel bad? Hell yes. Am I ashamed? Yes. I will always have a pain in my heart and soul. Judge all you want, you have no idea how I feel or how much hurt and pain I have inside. (Sorry I had to vent). Love you.

Close Window