

forgot - dead deer

Written by bubba

How can any list of hillbilly antics be complete without me including the time in 2004 when I obliterated a deer on the 80/90 freeway between Cleveland and Toledo, effectively totaling my car? I realize this, on the surface, appears to be more natural disaster and less white trash Olympics, but these types of things don't happen in the big city where I came from, only in the country. What also doesn't happen in the big city is having the tow truck driver ask you if you want to gut the deer you just pasted on the freeway median and salvage the meat. And when after you decline, he makes the assessment that Bambi wouldn't be a good Christmas dinner anyway because the bladder exploded on impact, subsequently poisoning all the 'edible parts'...yeah, that doesn't happen either.
